Congress preamble:

Human self-knowledge has been a fundamental subject of social and human sciences from ancient times until now, and if Greek philosophy has been characterized by the universal encyclopedic aspect, the modern stage has witnessed a systematic separation of social sciences from intuitive reasoning philosophy .

There is no doubt that the social sciences have developed with the development of man at all historical stages. Not only , subjects in the fields of human knowledge has expanded to issues that were not known before, but the most important thing is the major fundamental development that man has achieved in the study curricula of the various social sciences subjects.

After the great success and good reputation of our previous Congresses the public University of Harran, in cooperation with Rimar Academy, organize the V. International Congress for Contemporary Studies in Social Sciences, in attendance in Istanbul as well as online 21 to 23 May 2022.

The Congress administration calls for all interested people, whether researchers, academics, university professors, scientists, all interested in the field of social studies to participate in this Congress, which provides an opportunity to contribute to the presentation of new scientific visions that respond to the urgent need posed by the emerging issues in modern human society, An aim which can be achieved only throw an interactive relationship led by a research team.

Congress Problematic:

The post-modern transformations of the 20th century have contributed to a systematic revolution in social sciences, not only in the precise and scientific results desired by new methodologies, but also in emerging social themes imposed by contemporary life, such as terrorism, globalization, human's social and psychological relations as well as social and psychological problems caused by the emergence of the Coronavirus at the end of the 21st century.

The congress is seeking to identify the main themes, the old and new ones, that are being studied in the social and human sciences, as well as the new methodological developments adopted by these sciences in the 21st century.

The congress aims to be a scientific platform for researchers and to highlight their new ideas and perceptions. The congress research and outputs will be published in an internationally-ranked scientific journal, thus helping to exchange ideas between researchers to access scientific knowledge related to their studies in contemporary social sciences that contribute to the making of man's present and future.

Congress goals :

- Work on forming a scientific forum for social and human studies and presenting their ideas to the general social and cultural milieu.
- Understanding the new readings created by contemporary social studies.
- An attempt to uncover new methodologies and fields of contemporary social studies.
- Discussing the problems of historical investigation forms for the social and human sciences (ancient, medieval, modern and contemporary).
